ROBERT, EARL OF GRANTHAM

I thought you didn't like him?

VIOLET, DOWAGER COUNTESS OF GRANTHAM

Well, so what? I have plenty of friends I don't like.

ROBERT, EARL OF GRANTHAM

Would you want Mary to marry one of them?

VIOLET, DOWAGER COUNTESS OF GRANTHAM

Why do you always have to pretend to be nicer than the rest of us?

July 18, 2014

The steers have successfully negotiated the roundabouts. It must be Frontier Days!

And, it looks like I will be the foster mom for a stray Australian Shepherd. You'll get to meet her because she is coming to the shop these days. We had to shave her hair off and I don't want her to get sunburned--she's smart enough to get in out the sun, into the garage, but she's old and she doesn't always think smart.

Standard definition of emergency: sudden crisis requiring action: an unexpected and sudden event that must be dealt with urgently.

Retirement definition of emergency: 30 days.

Being retired requires getting used to a whole different mindset and schedule. I've been at it a year and I still don't think I have it figured out.

For example, while I worked, I saved money in a deferred compensation plan. I considered this stash of money to be an emergency fund for, well, emergencies. You know, those unexpected things that happen and you need a cache of money fast to repair or replace whatever broke. Like a refrigerator.

Turns out, if I want to use that money to buy, say, a refrigerator, I need to plan ahead 30 days so I can order the money to be delivered in time for the refrigerator to break. This also requires the preordering of a crystal ball in order to plan 30 days ahead of the emergency that hasn't happened yet. I'm just kidding. A crystal ball doesn't alert you to refrigerator melt downs. It's only good for the really important things. Like Dorothy seeing the wicked witch or Saruman talking with Sauron in the Lord of the Rings, plotting the end of days.

When I explained to the nice man that I had planned on using this fund for emergencies, he blithely stated that 30 days actually fit the definition of emergency because you don't have to pay bills until 30 days later. Clearly, he's never bought a refrigerator. Or had a car worked on. Or had a new furnace installed. I could go on, but you get my drift. Not everything waits for 30 days.

Can you imagine the 911 emergency call: "This is 911, what's your emergency?" "My refrigerator is going to break in 30 days. Can you help?" Actually, you wouldn't call 911 for a refrigerator problem. You're more likely to call 911 if your house is on fire, and we get upset when the response time is over 5 minutes-even when the fire trucks live 10 minutes away. Just think how upset you'd be if the responder said, "We'll schedule a fire truck for you in 30 days once we process all the paperwork. Can you give me your social security number now? It might speed things up by a day or two."

I guess he's got to say something to all of those incredulous retirees who can't understand why in this day & age it takes 30 days to get money out of a fund. But to suggest that a 30 day wait still fits a definition of emergency? I don't think so. He needs a better writer.

In his defense, apparently a hundred applications for withdrawals come in every day. So if one person can only process 40 per day (and I think that is a gross exaggeration) the job becomes the perfect example of the saying, "The hurrier I go the behinder I get."

Because of course, there is only 1 person who processes everything. This is state government at its finest: More workers aren't the answer. Waiting is the answer. Waiting for 30 days. I understand now why AARP exists: Retired people can get very angry when their needs are not being timely met. And retired people don't have that much time to waste any more. And there are bunches of us out there, more coming every day.

I should also mention that my original paperwork was sent on June 10 but got lost - a new system was installed in May & is not working quite right so they had to go back to the old way of doing things and paperwork, my paperwork, got lost in the process. Now the new way won't be any faster-it will just offer a lot more info to the processors. Or I should say processor. So old way, new way, it's still 30 days.

And I'm still waiting. Just kidding. I got the check yesterday.

QUILT WYOMING WAS A SUCCESS!

Bucking Horse and Rider News! The fabric is here!

Please be patient with us. We've been cutting for 2 days. I'm going home now (9 p.m.) 'cause I've started making mistakes. We will keep cutting on Saturday and on Sunday. It may take us that long.

The good news? I think we will have extras. The extras will go fast and are already being spoken for. If you are interested in more (of the bison, saddle & denim) please let me know and I will put you on the list.

WHAT'S NEW!!

I brought in a "roll" of black raw silk (silk noir). Right now, it's on the roll and in a box. We will be cutting yard cuts from it so that we can more easily display the silk. This is most often used in embroidery for backgrounds. Anyone taking Judith Baker Montano's classes--this is one of the materials she recommends.

We also have in Omni Thread on big spools, wash away thread, YLI silk ribbon, some silk thread, some more Valdani thread size 12, Superior Thread on bobbins (mainly for use in applique, but can be used in bobbins in machines), buttons, Karen Buckley's Perfect scissors, and the The Gypsy Quilter Sit Upon--great for taking to classes.

New books & patterns + plus a bunch more patterns that I couldn't grab pics for.
